

Guess Who? Photo Prop Game

Learning Objectives: This activity provides a step-by-step guide to making a Photo Prop Frame. Students can make and decorate their own Prop Frame, which can be used to play Emotion Guessing Game. This is a fun, engaging and non-threatening way for students to recognize how our facial expressions change when we act out different emotions.

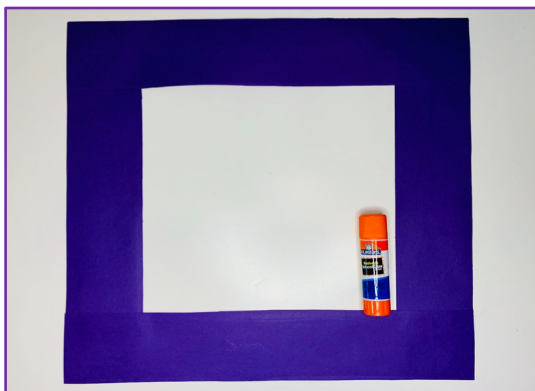

Materials needed:
Construction paper, scissors, glue, and decorating materials (e.g., markers, color pencils, stickers, confetti)

Step 1. Fold the construction paper into fourths.

Step 2. Cut along to make four long pieces.

Step 3. Glue four pieces into a square frame.

Step 4. Decorate your frame!

Suggestions for teachers and/or caregivers: Adult supervision is recommended as students will need to use scissors during this activity. Once the Prop Frame is made, have students take turns making facial expressions depicting certain emotions holding up the frame that they have made. Have the rest of the class guess the emotions. Teachers and/or caregivers may want to demonstrate first. Have students take photos of themselves expressing a variety of emotions and then have them discuss the features of the corresponding facial expressions (e.g., similarities among all happy faces; differences between happy and sad faces).

*Can you guess these emotions?
Can you describe how they are different?*
